The New York World, of Saturday, says: "War rumors have at length become an influence of importance in the speculation in cutton, breadstuffs and provisions, and this fact is an evidence that there is something in them. The only result et produced is upon cotton, which quite broke down on Thursday, in the face of some circumstances which seemed to favor an advance. Should hostilities of a serious nature occur in Europe, its im-mediate effect upon us would be very marked, in reversing the drift which prices and speculation have taken in the past few weeks." The prolonged duliness of trade is causing much remark, the New York Chronicle said on Saturday: "It calls for more than ordinary searches, they continued to the continu than ordinary sagacity to have been able to foresee and to prepare for such a prolonged stagnation in all industrial ent rprises as that which our country is now pessing through. This paralysis is the result of no crainary cause, but may be traced buck to our fluencial system. The panic we could, under ordinary cirumstances, have shou recovered from. But in this case there was no true basis to build upon, no starting point; and hence we have drifted and are still drift-ing, with a result which is marked by the many wrecks left along the shore. During the last six months the total failures are in excess of any previous twelve months in our record, except the years 1857, 1851 and 1875."

Orders were scarce; importers took nothing. The inquiry was spiritiess, and sellers and buyers were apan, for the former were steady at quotations, while the latter claim that prices are too high to give them the margin they require. Speculators, however, saw a chance, and took a good proportion of what was sold. Prices remained at previous quotations in all the markets. Quotations at the Memphis cotton exchange were as follows:

The weather yesterday was a decided improvement on that of the day before, and again this chronicler is supremely happy. We think the swallows may safely return, and the spring-frogs resnow their vesper carols, without a fear of having to haul in their horns.

Rivers. There is not so much anxiety felt about the reported rise in the upper streams as it is already evident that the wave will be exhausted by the decline which happily set in before the rise got down this far. The only inconvenience elt—and that is a very serious one—will be the delay of the drawing off of the water from the lower plantations, where the farmers are anxious to get to work putting in the crops. We hope the in-convenience will not be as great as is now anticipated. We append the latest particulars, official and by the Associated Press dispatches:
